TOTEM JOURNEY

THE HOUSE OF TEARS CARVERS

YOU ARE INVITED

In collaboration with Learning Right Relations and Justice Washington, Interfaith Works is proud to welcome the House of Tears Carvers from the Lummi tribe as they embark on a cross-country voyage to deliver a totem pole to President Biden. The totem pole journey, known as the “Red Road to DC”, will stop at numerous sacred sites, including Bears Ears, Chaco Canyon, Black Hills, Standing Rock.

You are invited to a ceremony of offering blessings to this totem and its stewards. Come and hear from the carvers about the totem pole, witness faith leaders offer song and prayers, be a part of touching the totem pole, and participating in this sacred journey to raise awareness of indigenous lands that are threatened.
